ALMA MATER

On the county's southern border,
Reared against the sky,
Proudly stands our Alma Mater
As the years go by.

2.

When we from these walls have parted
And life's journey's on,
Thy great spirit will inspire us
'till eternal dawn.

Chorus

May it ever be our watchword,
Conquer and prevail,
Hail to thee, Our Alma Mater,
Dear old Copeland, hail!

This is a story of the history of our school. Time changes things—and the old must give way to the new. With the passing of an era, there are many who have a nostalgia for things that are past. They will enjoy the story that this book unfolds before their eyes. It is a story of thirty-six years of work and play, joys and sadness. It is the story of the sounds of laughter—the sobs of sorrow. Some voices once heard here are stilled forever...some sing to grandchildren ...and some are still heard within these walls.

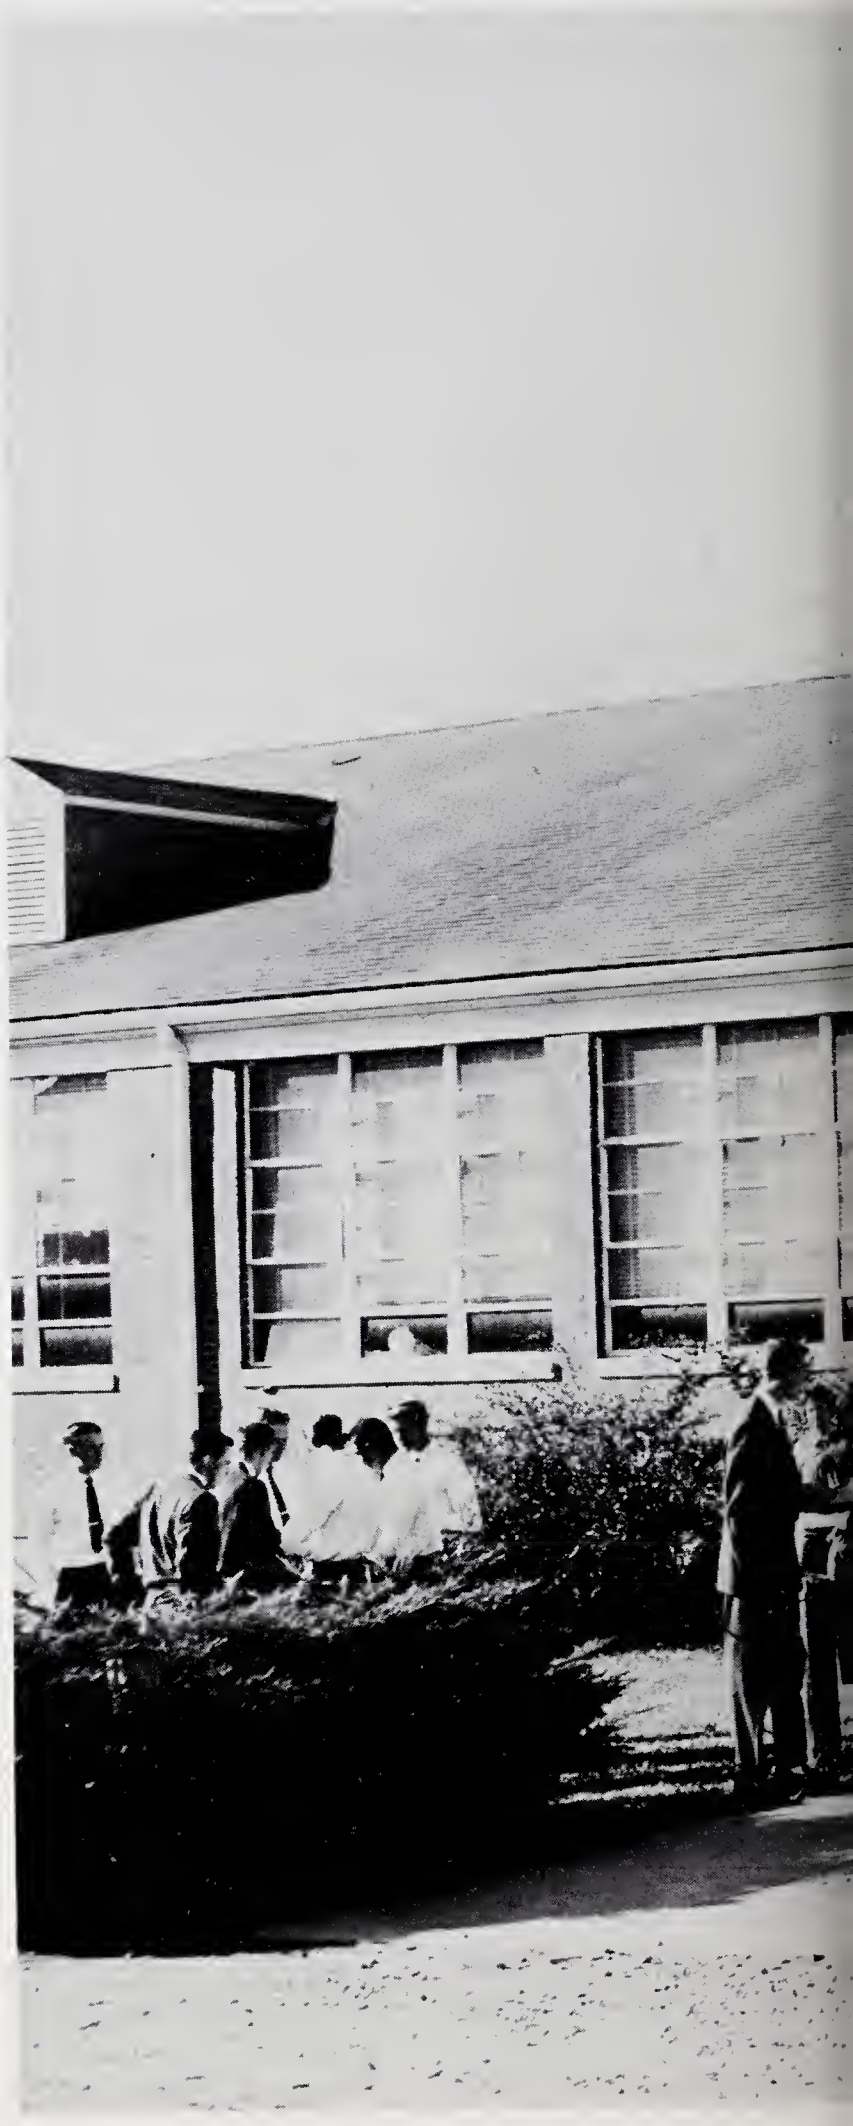
Foreword



It is our intention, through written word and pictures, to turn back the calendar into the years of jazz and giddy spending...depression...war...peace and prosperity...recalling the good and the happy, but acknowledging that the sad and painful also make up life...and in so doing, present a brief synopsis of the history and spirit of our Alma Mater.

The History of Copeland is the biography of ARTHUR GRAHAM. So interwoven are the lives of the two that on many occasions he has received mail addressed to Mr. Copeland. In young manhood, with all the vigor and enthusiasm of youth, he came to a still unfinished building and an unorganized faculty and student body. He faced students older than he, teachers with years of experience, and parents wary of this new consolidation venture. With military precision, he soon had things clicking and if he inwardly faltered, the piercing black eyes and fearless manner belied his feelings. Soon his genuine love for the folk of these hills, his understanding insight, and his ability to see the good in everyone, won him a place in the school and community, and for thirty six years Mr. Graham has been the pulse and heartbeat of this our school—Copeland.

To no other living person could we dedicate this, our 1961 and last issue, of THE WINDSWEPT ECHOES.

In the fall of '24, it all began. Gathering about fifty boys and girls of high school age from widely scattered communities, the first year was spent in learning the ways of the new thing called consolidation. There was no graduating class that year, but in '26 there were seven graduates. In '27 five boys finished. In '28 there were twelve, and in '29 the number had grown to nineteen, and the high school was then about one hundred—and so, a new decade began...

THE HIGH SCHOOL

This decade began like any other but depression set in and held its grip on all alike. The children kept coming though, and school went on. The lean years could not darken the spirit of Copeland... and from her the people drew courage. These were the years of enlarging the building, championship teams, building a gym, and growing in size and character.

The storm clouds were gathering as this decade was ushered in. Soon the nation and the world were at war.

Copeland entered the service of her country. Defense work, bond drives, draft registrations and registration for rationing, home nursing and first aid courses, Red Cross knitting classes, supplemented regular classes and school work.

Teachers went into service. Alumni left in large numbers—and those at home worked and waited... Then it was over and many came home—but six did not return.

Happy days did come again though—and changes, Two new buildings and a new grade were added—and then another decade came to an end.

Administration

MR. GROVER WOOD

MR. SAM BANNER

Through the years, the administration has been of the calibre that gave the school the best there was to offer. For many years Mr. Grover Wood was chairman of the local board and the County Board of Education. Mr. Sam Banner and Mr. Isrel Davis served with him and Mr. John Comer was superintendent.

Under their administration, the school grew from one small building to a large modern plant of four buildings well equipped and staffed.

Today, the school is proud of its present school board and superintendent.

Through all the years Mr. Graham has served as honored and respected principal.

Faculty

Whether the time was in the Jazz Age, The Fearful Forties, or The Soaring Sixties, the faculty has always been made up of men and women who loved boys and girls and put their welfare first in their interests and efforts.

That there has never been a large turnover in the teaching personnel at any time in the history of the school, proves that Copeland is a school loved by both faculty and students.

Publications Board 1953

Through the years, the publications have had an important place in the life of the school.

"The Echo," the school newspaper, was established in 1927 and has provided opportunities for self expression, practical reporting, and business contacts. It has helped build better relations between school and community through the years.

THE WINDSWEPT ECHOES, the yearbook, was established in 1948. It has served to keep a record of school life since that year.

The school has always taken pride in its publications and many copies of both are cherished in homes throughout the community.

The school can well be proud of its clubs. Through their activities, the life of the student is well rounded, and he becomes a complete person.

The Glee Club satisfies the artistic appetites. The Library Club gives some a chance to work with books. The Bus Drivers render service to the school. The Beta Club recognizes scholarship, leadership, and citizenship and gives the member a chance "to lead by serving others." The 4-H Club builds character and provides opportunities for developing the practical arts. The Monogram Club binds together those who have excelled in athletic prowess. The Future Farmers and Future Homemakers make real the vocations of farming and homemaking.

The Future Of

VIRGINIA CURRY
Home Economics Teacher

The Future Homemakers of America Club is made up of girls who have taken or are participating in the study of Vocational Home Economics.

It had its beginning in the early forties under the guidance of Miss Virginia Curry, Home Economics Teacher.

Then, the club was known as the Royal Order of Home Economics.

Later, when the department became vocationalized, the chapter joined the National Organization which is the present FHA.

This group of girls work hard and their activities cover all phases of homemaking, child care, community service, first aid and home nursing. In the meantime they have plenty of time for fun and recreation.

The Future Of

In 1929, under the leadership of Mr. Gordon Kirkman, these boys who took agriculture were active in school and community.

In 1957, The Future Farmers made Mr. Graham an honorary Chapter Farmer, which was in keeping with his avocation of earlier years, and his interests of all years.

Farmers America

The FFA Officers 1956...Mr. James Davis, Advisor.

The Future Farmers of 1960 number more than 75. With Mr. William Parker as their advisor, they participate in many community improvement projects. Many have received recognition for outstanding work in seed judging and tool judging contests. They have also placed highly in other competitions in the field of Vocational Agriculture. The school has always been keenly aware and appreciative of the work done by this fine club.

Through the years, the record of the basketball and baseball teams has made the school proud. On display in the High School library are sixty-five trophies which attest to their prowess.

In 1936, the boys' basketball team captured the Class A State Championship and won the noted Journal-Sentinel tournament. In 1937, the girls' team won the Journal-Sentinel trophy. Several times one or the other team was County Champion. In 1960, both teams won the County Conference titles, and the county tournament.

The baseball teams have several times been County Champions. Twice they won the Yadkin-Valley Conference title. In 1954, they were district winners.

Basketball

Sometimes a school has to dwell upon past laurels for fame. Not so with the basketball teams at Copeland. Consistently, throughout the years, they have had winning squads. Hard work, good coaching, good school backing, and a basketball-minded community, combined to give the school championship teams.

The passing of an era always brings a measure of sadness. It is a period of looking backward and reviewing its efforts and accomplishments—its pleasures and joys—but remembering the bitter with the sweet. As a new era begins, it is a time to look to new horizons—a time to dream and plan.

We who are graduating share the joys of looking back. We also dream with those who go ahead; but most of all, we want to express our appreciation for a school like ours and its great impact on our lives. Our hearts are full of gratitude for many things and people. For those who planned and labored so that we might enjoy a modern, well equipped plant and attractive surroundings—for friends and classmates with whom we shared many lessons in social living and from whom we learned the joys of friendship and brotherly love—for teachers who were always working to build character and to instill into our minds the art of being ladies and gentlemen—and last, but not least, for the immortal spirit that is Copeland—we say Thank You!
